LIFE,

The sheer essence of being ourselves.
To be caught up in the wonderfut whirl, gaiety, and bright lights of living. We laugh, we love, we cry, we pray.
We seek ourseloes in solitude
We search for and Search.
to our many questions, and the real meaning of life.
We are confused by that cq ibe expressed by words only $\boldsymbol{y}$ e?
by the touch of a haria, ameaningful slaric or an upturneal face.
We spend long hours" obtaining knowledge and wisdom
we relive history,
investigate the sciences,
and find beauty in the arts.
Yet we wonder what lies ahead in this world of rapid change, turmoil,
and rebellion.
And so we reach out to the Future.
Yet still a part of us clings to the Past.
We strive for perfection
with all our time, energy, and skilland achieve.
We extend our physical beings by sports and dance, and we are involved.
We probe for something more-
Asking,
Reaching out, and Touching at last.
We search to find our own Identity.

We seek ourselves in solitude

We strive for perfection
with all our time, energy, and skill-and achieve.

We relive history,
investigate the sciences, and find beauty in the arts.

Asking, Reaching out, and Touching at last We search to find our own Identity.

ADMINISTRATORS,

Individuals who care enough about the "now generation" to take the time to help us in our search for a better future.
They open up lost avenues of knowledge, and awaken in us a desire to learn, Asking
leading,
searching questions
that challenge our minds to seek truth.
We grasp a single idea and with their help it evolves, explodes into something relevant of tangible worth.
They impart wisdom from experience and give us the background to begin our search for more.

Standing in front of the Cache District School offices, board members Keith D. Hansen, Director of Business Administration; Willis S. Hall, President; Mark B. Lindley, Vice-President; C. Bryce Draper, Superintendent; Clifford J. Stauffer, Member; Doris W. Budge, Member; and Dean Haslem, Member; pause from their hectic day's schedule.

'CACHE COUNTY does it

better,'says Superintendent

Superintendent Bryce C. Draper declared that Cache District was the best in the state and then set out to prove it. The board members approved plans for a student center whose dimensions and furnishings were not to be equaled in the state of Utah. New bleachers, raised five feet from the ground, were added to the football field making a total seating capacity of 16,000 . Improvements were also made on the sound and lighting system in the auditorium. The board also approved and coordinated textbook use, bus transportation, and the school lunch program.

Superintendent C. Bryce Draper studies curriculum changes for the coming school year.

VICE-PRINCIPALS aware of student problems

"I feel great about Sky View," said VicePrincipal Leon West. One of the most active people in the school, Mr. West promoted Sky View and all it had to offer. Most students got to know him as he worked with them on attendance, lockers, transportation, audiovisual equipment, textbooks, and graduation.

Though not new to Sky View, Mr. John Hansen, former history department head, filled the new position of Administrative Intern. He was closeted with the Executive Council first hour planning activities, assemblies, and money raising projects. He also worked with the student and coordinating councils.

SECRETARIES and

COUNSELORS aid students

At one time or another students frantically tried to locate a counselor or they tried to locate a student. Mr. Taggart settled problems as new students came from junior high to Sky View. Mr. Harris helped students agree on vocations and register for the coming year. Mrs. Smith was busy with seniors as she presented scholarships and planned orientation to carry students on in education

Secretaries were relieved of filling out ab-sent-slips, but were kept busy filling out tardy slips and checking students out of school. Keeping finance records, typing reports, and keeping track of student records still found them prepared for the oncoming day.

Sky View FACULTY spends leisure time in faculty lounge and lunchroom

Giving classes lectures or just discussing some heavy matter with other faculty members, over a coke, in between classes, or in the faculty lounge, the faculty was united with Sky View in all it did and stood for. They solved many student problems inside and outside the classroom and became involved in extracurricular activities by acting as club and class advisors. They showed their loyalty and enthusiasm by wearing identical blue blazers on days of games and always supporting special events such as the play, musical, and all dances.

COOKS, BUS DRIVERS, CUSTODIANS provide services

Innovations, the snack bar, choice of desserts, salads and sometimes main dishes, kept 1000 students happily fed and the cooks busy. They also served at extracurricular dinners.

Candy wrappers, spit wads, and rippedup assignments were swept off the floors by a force of nine custodians. Working all day and half the night, they kept Sky View spotless.

Amid the racket of students yelling and falling in the aisles, the bus drivers still managed to get everyone to school. Some bus drivers also drove sports fans to away games.

Cook Virginia Hansen slices the hundreds of loaves of bread consumed along with meals by the students, especially boys.

ACADEMICS

Gathering a general

conception of the world Material, Physical, even Spiritual.
We gain a knowledge of the societies, sciences, and arts of the past.
We try to relate those of today, and to create those of tomorrow.
Overcoming weaknesses, we search and are awed by the complexity of life.
We may discover boredom and failure, but thrill when we comprehend.

We search for a better understanding of why.

FINE ARTS students design advertisements, sketch landscapes, paint

portraits and make ceramics

A new semester-two hour block class, Commercial Art, was introduced this year into the art program. The students learned to design advertisements when Professor Anderson of the USU Art Department gave them the problem of making an advertisement for a foods company. Other art classes sketched landscapes, old buildings, and still life while advanced artists worked with water colors and oil. Ceramics classes fired bottles, vases, and figurines.

Traveling to the Cottonwood Mall, the A cappella Choir sang Christmas carols to shoppers and sang later at the Logan Tabernacle. The Girls' Glee and orchestra performed in a Sunday afternoon concert for the public. The Pep Band spurred the studentbody's enthusiasm during football and basketball games.

DRIVERS' EDUCATION gives pre-driving tests

edge and experience as they went through the steps of changing a tire. Emergency stops, U-turns, and turn-abouts were maneuvers that filled six hours of actual driving. Firstaid was also taught along with the showing of the film, Death on the Highway.

Top: During first hour Drivers' Ed., Molly Elwood and Steven Clark listen intently and ask questions as Monte Cook explains the parts of the engine and their functions: Left: Using her six hours of practice driving, JoAnn Izatt practices maneuvering in the Drivers' Ed. car as she watches impatiently for the oncoming traffic while doing a right turn-about. Right: Taking one of the many required pre-driving tests, Marilee Murray checks her peripheral vision to prepare herself for driving.

LIBRARY SCIENCE

assistants serve students

Service was the key word to the twentyeight students enrolled in Library Science who acted as assistant librarians in helping other students find what they needed. On-the-job-training was gained as they learned the fundamentals of processing, cataloging and filing books, magazines, and various other equipment. Thousands of magazines were unearthed and hours donated daily helping students with research papers, etc. Typing, check outs and all other business, except for technical processing, along with the tedious job of reshelving books fell to these students who made the Media Center efficient.

Left: Jean DeGassar puts a cart load of returned books on shelves where they belong. Below: Elvi Campos types up card numbers for each book in the Library. Below left: Elsie Scott checks out books for students at counter

LANGUAGE ARTS provides means for communication

Different areas covered in English, such as the study of communication through music, poetry recitals, mono-acts and a seance showed that English was not just a grammar or a literature class. But English did have work-ask any student who accomplished a research paper. Designed to help the students study at their own rates, the tract program was continued. Foreign language classes brought the rest of the world closer by teaching about customs and people as well as their dialects. Speech gave Language Arts a dramatic twist as the speech students prepared stories, speeches, and pantomimes.

Students hope to gain college

 credit for MATH classEight different subjects ranging from arithmetic to programmed calculus were offered by the Math Department. General math was taken by students needing a background for more advanced theorems. Algebra I, II, college algebra, geometry, and college trigonometry were studied by more advanced students. Two of Sky View's extra advanced pupils learned programmed calculus and hoped to pass a test for college credit. Seniors only enrolled in a survey math class that covered basic math, algebra, and trigonometry.

Right: Studying trigometric shapes helps Kallin Johnson, Leon Spackman, and Nola White understand the more difficult concepts. Lower left: Nartnucha Unhanand discovers that more sources than one are necessary to comprehend the theorems found in analyzing symmetric angles. Lower right: James Ashby looks on as his bridge is tested for strength in a contest sponsored by the Math Department.

P.E. DEPARTMENT teaches bowling, archery, tennis

Activities to develop strong and wellcoordinated bodies and to help students acquire skill that could be put to use in everyday life were offered by the Physical Education Department. Boys and girls both were able to participate and get detailed instruction in such varied activities as football, basketball, archery, tennis, bowling, tumbling, and swimming. Girls in the Modern Dance classes learned new and different dancing techniques and how to express their creativity and emotions through dance.

SCIENCE classes learn irrigation principles while touring multi-million ## dollar lab on Logan River

Scientific experiences were extended beyond the classroom to include a tour of the Arco atomic energy plant in Idaho Falls and a visit to the water research laboratory on the banks of Logan River, where principles of irrigation were studied. Dr. Kim Bridges from the ecology department of Utah State University gave insights into the problems of air, land, and water pollution in the United States. A new class, Chemistry II or advanced chemistry, gave students interested in science an opportunity to expand their knowledge chemically. In the classroom, biologists dissected frogs while health classes delved into the workings of the human mind and zoologists studied amoebas. Each student had the chance of improving his knowledge and capability in science through a well-rounded program.

Left: Maria Barrera and Roland Balls check the materials produced from a still which has been made in their chemistry class. Below: Randy Hansen and Scott Olsen take apart the department mannequin while studying the various organs and muscles of the body in their health class.

Top: Debbie Ballam and Dixie Goodsell learn the techniques of operating the microscopes while observing lichens and algae in a plant life unit in biology. Left: Mike Spulher takes a temperature reading from a calorimeter which is used to measure the calories contained in certain foods in his physics class. Right: Darwin Maughan works intently trying to focus on a plate containing foreign matter under his microscope.

SOCIAL SCIENCE department adds semester classes and features guest

speakers to enhance classes

By studying world affairs, current events, and past history, students learned to associate themselves with the world around them. Two new semester classes were added to the curriculum of the Social Science Department. Political Science dealt with how individuals influenced government and national decisions while World Cultures taught the customs, religion, and art of great cultures, past and present.

Dr. Douglas Alder worked with the department in a new approach to World History. The department featured guest speakers including Dr. Phillip Spoerry, an expert on China, Russia, and Southeast Asia; Dr. Dan Jones from USU, an expert on polls and surveys; and George Tribble, a Negro member of the Executive Council at USU who talked to the Sociology classes about race relations.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT teaches students personal, vocational skills

Activity never seemed to cease in the Vocational Building Business Department as the continuous staccato of typewriters set the pace. Foreign sounding "ish's and kay's" came from the shorthand room as first year students learned the fundamentals of a new language, shorthand. Adding machines rolled as students tallied up problems and compiled statistics in record and bookkeeping classes. Data processing prepared students for careers in the new field of computer technology. In the two-hour block office practice class, senior girls received detailed training to give them a better opportunity to achieve jobs as secretaries. On-the-job training and instructions in such things as display and advertising helped DECA students in present and future jobs.

Upper: "Keep your eyes on the book, not on your hands!" commands the teacher as Shawna Hammond types an assignment. Lower left: Michelle Miller and Sharon Jacobson include a stuffed cat in their display in the vocational building showcase prepared during a class of Distributive Education. Lower right: In Shorthand II, a twohour vocational class, Karen Jeppesen takes dictation.

HOME ECONOMICS teaches skills needed in future

Odors of foreign foods, German spice cookies, lasagna, and shrimp curry, filled the halls from the lab of the Foods II class. The basic fundamentals of cooking and nutrition were learned through Foods I, while the two-hour Foods Service class actually set up a restaurant, sold pies, catered banquets, and took field trips through cafeterias.

The necessary skills of sewing and the more intricate details of tailoring were learned as students added to their wardrobe through Sewing I and II. Preparation for life of college and marriage in the near future was made by senior girls through Homeliving. They studied how to plan meals on a budget, home beautification, and child development.

Right: Mr. Carlson, owner-manager of a local fabric store, tells a Sky View clothing class about materials as he makes his annual visit to the school. Lower right: As Jane Robinson measures the hem of a dress made in her Clothing I class, Vicki Salveson watches in the mirror. Below: While Susan Blauer goes over the recipe, Julie Spackman removes the finished product from the cooky sheet to a cooling rack, and Renae Wilhelm looks on.

Glenna Hugie, Leila Buttars, Jolynne Jensen, Rinda Larson, and Carol Daines watch Mrs. Swapp demonstrate the skill of making homemade bread in Homeliving.
Students obtain brighter job outlook for future through work-study program in SPECIAL EDUCATION

To help the exceptional student adjust to life and make his own way in the world was the goal of Sky View's Special Education Department. In helping the students prepare for the future, the seniors were put on a work-study program. The program was designed to train the students for such jobs as dental assistants, radio announcers, service station operators, warehouse managers, welders and custodians. The sophomores and juniors were given academic classes along with classes to prepare them for the work-study program.

Students learn skills in INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Students enrolled in the Industrial Arts Department learned the basic skills needed to succeed in a vocation. Some classes offered were not only designed for future plans but for the student's enjoyment and feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment now. These classes included: Crafts - making a leather wallet or a stone ring; Woods - building a gun cabinet or a bookshelf; Photography taking over the position as head photographer for the family album; and Power Mechanics fixing up the car for the smoothest, fastest ride in town. In Electronics - the students repaired the school's audio visual aids, giving them actual, on-the-spot training.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE provides 'On the Job Training' in all phases of rural farmingWelding, oiling, rebuilding, and repairing tractors, trucks, and trailers gave Vocational Agriculture students the knowledge of farm mechanics needed for a successful farming operation. "On the Job Training" in mechanics was provided by classes in the north side of the remote Vocational Ag building, while the south side students learned the modern techniques of raising and judging animals. Many students won honors and ribbons for their cattle, sheep, and rabbits at county and state fairs. Another popular project was assisting with a dairy operation. Wondering how to get a grade for a horse that died during a project was one student's problem. The students also learned about crop rotation, soil testing, and fertilization.

Right: Lee Nelson, John Petersen, and David Anderson check the amount of butterfat in the milk and record their findings in the daily record book. Below: Wearing a welding helmet, Brent Clark welds two pieces of metal

STUDENTS,

A blur massed together with rights and wrongs,
To be there always for teachers and the establishment.
Individuality, pressures, desire, emotion.
We are alone looking at us as the World
whirls madly by.
Selfish, busy, scared, confused.
Stop
and let me
search for me.
Let me find the something, simple and precious in the individual who begins with a search for himself and ends with the discovery of a life.

SENIORS anxiously anticipate long-awaited diploma

Seniors of 1971, like all seniors before them, faced a year of indecision. Questions of the future - whether to go to college, and which to go to-plagued them. Senior officers Dell Loy Hansen, President; Steve McFarland, Vice-President; and Kristy Lewis, Secretary; successfully led the class in setting a new pace in activities. They carried their special project, the student center to completion by donating labor and money through special projects such as dances, movies, Buddy Board sales, and pop bottle and newspaper drives. The Senior Prom in November centered around the theme "Autumn Leaves." A well-produced assembly, "Life, Love, and People," highlighted April.

Although busy, Senior officers Dell Loy Hansen, President; Kristy Lewis, Secretary; and Steve McFarland, Vice-President; still find time to have fun together.

Juniors found that involvement in school activities reached a climax their junior year. No longer subjected to the pains and unfamiliarity of being a Sophomore, Juniors joined clubs, held offices, and carried leads in the play and musical. They planned and carried through the decorations and an assembly for the main social event of the year, the Junior Prom. High in academic ability, some Juniors took the National Merit Scholarship Test and the ACT. They donated their share of help to the student center by raising money and pouring the cement floor. Officers of the class of ' 72 were Darrell Simmons, President; JoAnn Simmonds, Vice-Presi dent; and Helen Hurren, Secretary.

SOPHOMORES, largest class ever to enter Sky View

Emerging from the smaller world of junior high activities, 511 sophomores entered Sky View full of a new and bubbling enthusiasm. After experiencing typical sophomore frustrations of getting lost and stared at, running into tall seniors, and being generally confused by everything, they soon merged in clubs, sports, and other school activities.
"Sophomore only" activities included the all sophomore Pep Club, that gave them the special distinction of school spirit promoters. They sponsored a Sophomore Christmas Dance, "Snow FlakeFantasy," and an assembly. With leaders like Bruce Allen, President; Gary Webb, Vice-President; and Julie Merrill, Secretary, the class of ' 73 really made things happen.

Together Sophomore class officers Bruce Allen, President; Gary Webb, Vice-President, and Julie Merrill, Secretary, beat their opponents in a snowball fight.

Head Photographer Robert Zeller and Editor-in-Chief Laurie Miller go through mountains of sheets looking for the shot that is "just right," one of the jobs on which an editor and photographer are a team.

Copy Editor Rochelle Roberts pauses from typing to check the spelling of a students name with Managing Editor Sue Salcedo.

Junior Editors Cris Anhder, Rosalie Buck, Lynda Leonhardt, Pam Larsen, Melanie Smith and Advisor Belva Hansen get an early start on the plans of the 1971-'72 yearbook.

Layout Editors Joyce Zollinger and Susan Niederhauser design layouts on new Vis-a-Mat.

AURORA staff captures

moments to treasure forever

Cameras clicked, typewriters chattered, and minds whirred as the Aurora staff worked with pictures, words, and ideas to tell the story of 1971. Robert's cameras climbed halfway up a mountain and criss-crossed Cache Valley in his "Pig" to shoot just the right picture to fit the "dummy." The crew sacrificed sleep and sanity in the struggle to produce an A-plus book that would relate some of the experiences of each student. They had parties on the sly to celebrate finished deadlines off to Community Press, but their final satisfaction lay in the boxes and boxes of books unpacked and distributed to Bobcats, and in the knowledge they had caught moments that could be held in no other way.

Understanding created with CATONIAN news coverage

To create a greater understanding between administration and studentbody, to be the voice of the studentbody, and to recognize and honor the accomplishments of students was the almost impossible goal accomplished by the Catonian. Editorials by Co-Editors Joy Wadley and Amber Drury told the progress of the student center and Gary Spackman covered all school sports events. Rocky Erickson lent his dry humor to students' problems through his column "Sedimentary Thoughts." Crumpled up rough drafts, carbon paper, eraser crumbs and forgotten stale cookies helped create the general air of confusion in the Pub room which spawned a well developed, informative school paper.

PUBLICATIONS and Front Porch Majority help students keep up with school life, see new futures

Sky View's literary magazine, the Catalyst, gave students the opportunity to have their original writings published. Competing for money prizes during January and February, students wrote on such themes as "What it feels like to be a high school student" and "Pet Peeves." Students' art work was used to illustrate many of the poems, prose, stories and essays. They sold ads to the local merchants to cover the expenses of publication.

New this year, the Pub press club united all the publication organizations and other students who were interested into one group. They sold pop at football games to raise money for their trip to Salt Lake press companies.

With songs like "Windy," "A Kind of Hush" and "Sounds of Silence," twenty seniors of the Front Porch Majority entertained clubs, civic organizations, and schools. Every Wednesday and Friday at 7:00 a.m. they met for a two hour practice. Mr. Loosle directed, accompanist Vicki Peterson, with Mrs. Baird on choreography.

Co-Editors of the Catalyst, Gayla Mauchley and Margaret Howell, take Catalyst writing contest rule sheet to their Advisor, Mrs. Esplin.

Catalyst staff members, Paul Mourtisen, Jeff Geisler, Leslie Lundstrom, Sylvia Niederhauser, Dan Pitcher, and Roxie Zollinger get ideas from old Catalysts to help make the new one much better.

Ned Israelson, Cindy Durtschi, Karen Jones, Faye Griffin, and Karen Maughan intently study a piece of poetry written by a fellow student to determine its literary quality and publication in Catalyst.

MARCHING BAND parade down many streets, highways

Flashy instruments, white shoes, dark blue uniforms, and talented Sky View students combined to produce the Sky View Marching Band. Conducted by Mr. John Manning and band commanders, Robert Coleman and Kallin Johnson, the band performed in many parades and half time shows. The students showed self-sacrifice and true Bobcat spirit, both in the summer months and the school year, by enduring many hours of hard practice. The one-hundred and thirty six member band included eight twirlers and eight banner guards. The band, with their popular music and swift, story-telling formations, performed at the USU Football Game Show, Preston Lions' Benefit Night, and at many home game shows and activities. They marched at the USU and BYU Homecoming activities and parades, Wellsville Founders' Day parade and at Smithfield Health Days.

Harmonious SYMPHONIC BAND emits many talented and highly trained students which proves leaders ability

Each morning band students poured into class and after settling themselves, music spilled from the band room and traveled throughout the halls. Valuable instructions given to the students by their conductor, Mr. John Manning, helped them to develop their musical abilities and further their knowledge of music. Drums, French horns, tubas, and trombones all sounded their parts as the students rehearsed for their concerts Both individual and group determination, talent, participation, and practice helped in their daily progress. The Symphonic Band performed at the Band Invitational at Weber State College, Spring tour of Idaho, USU Band Invitational, Exchange Concert, School Assembly, and sponsored a Tri-School Band Concert with other high schools in the areas.

ORCHESTRA, CONCERT

BAND provide relaxation

Each morning during first hour, students hastily made their way into the band room. The Spring Finale in April, and the Tri-Band Concert were just two of the many programs in which the Concert Band took part in.

Sky View's orchestra performed at the Weber State Invitational, Christmas Concert, and the Grand Finale Concert in the spring. The orchestra conducted by Mr. Robert Frost enjoyed playing such songs as "Windmills of Your Mind" and "Folk Tune and Fiddle Dance."

Kami Elwood and Nancy Willmore enjoy playing and practicing their clarinets as they keep in time during second hour in band.

SV ACAPPELLA CHOIR sings at UEA for first time

In baby blue dresses and gold and brown suits, the A Cappella Choir formed a striking appearance during their many concerts. For the first time, the Sky View Choir was asked to perform at a session of music teachers at UEA. To help create the spirit of Christmas, they sang on the Cottonwood Mall Christmas Tree, for the Mid-day television show hosted by Jackie Knowkes, and for family and friends at Sky View the Sunday before Christmas. They created spiritual moods for various Cache Valley stake conferences, went on a road tour, and performed a variety of songs for the annual spring concert at the end of the year.

Above left: Every 3rd hour before class, choir members gather around folder slots to remove music that will be needed during class period. Lower left: Mr. Stratford Loosle, choir director, inspires singers with enthusiasm and pep as he leads them in "Hallelujah Chorus." Lower right: Karen Jeppsen, Gay Morgan, and Gay Taylor practice a song for an assembly while Birdie Lou Downs accompanies.

SV ORGANIZATIONS

"A-one, a-two, a-onetwothreefour," and the Studio Band jumped into life. Who in the school didn't hear their morning pep rallies, or who at the games was not inspired by their noise? They were invited again to play at the Salt Palace during nationally-televised games. The band also played at dances, and participated in a parade and a Jazz Festival.

Lead by Mr. Loosle, the Performing Girls' Glee had many satisfying experiences singing for schools, churches, and clubs. Girls auditioned for the glee which was comprised mostly of juniors with some senior girls.

To promote and encourage safety, the Safety Club made posters that were distributed around the school, sold flares, and prepared announcements for KVNU and KBLW radio stations for broadcast during the basketball season. A captain of the Logan Police Department spoke to the club on safe driving in winter.

Because it involved all the students in the school, the Girls' and Boys' Association differed from all other clubs at Sky View. Together they presented the Homecoming assembly and dance. The girls planned programs on grooming, dating, marriage, etiquette and careers. The boys had films and speakers.

VISTAUNS, PEP CLUB

spark spirit during games

New at Sky View this year was the enthusiastic sophomore Pep Club. Some of their projects were selling the Sky View calendars and footballs, making posters, and acting as hostesses for visiting teams. They also put on a half-time for basketball, handed out programs, and generally helped everywhere needed.

With the words "Attention! Forward! March!" the Vistauns kicked off to begin another year. After a summer of 6:00 a.m. practices, the Vistauns were asked to perform at halftime shows for the Utah Stars, BYU, and six of Sky View's home games. The girls participated in the Invitational, a program presented by all the marching groups in Division I. The year was climaxed with a Review of selected drills that included a novelty dance to show that they could have fun, too.

Pep Club members, Karen Jackson, Toni Rose, Jerri Larsen, and Donna Hansen, experiment with giant colored magic markers as they ponder ideas of how to make the weekly pep posters for the halls.

ORGANIZATIONS for

boys to serve Sky View

An athlete who wears a letter has partly earned his way into the Lettermen's Club. Some of the activities for the club were rising early for breakfast, playing basketball from a donkey's back, and frying steak. The Lettermen donated a radio for the athletic bus.

Another all-boy club, the Key Club, sponsored a dance, raised the flag for all the home games, and decorated goal posts for the Homecoming game. Members removed shrubbery, varnished beams, and hauled newspapers for funds used on the Student Center.

Highest average or lowest average, the Bowling Club members still managed to enjoy themselves. Meeting twice monthly, the club observed the technique used in professional bowling and found time to plan a profitable bake sale to raise money for the Student Center. Trophies were awarded at the end of the year for highest total points, with a booby prize for the lowest points earned.

Along with serving as timers and judges at swimming meets, the Aquatic members held swimming parties in Sky View's pool. Planning the activities for the club were David Zeller, President, Ann Whitworth, VicePresident, and Secretary, Clarinda Little.

FOOD SERVICES

operate restaurant, bakery

Touring bakeries and food factories helped food service members learn to cook for home and professional use. In the spring, the club operated a restaurant for the faculty. As a final tour of food service businesses, members visited such places as United Flight kitchens.

Once a month FHA members met for fun and learning. Parties, roller skating, bēwling, caroling, and a dance gave everyone a chance to make new friends. At Christmas time, the club sent packages to prisoners-of-war. In the spring, 40 girls attended a state FHA convention held at Hotel Utah in Salt Lake City. To top off the year, new officers were installed at a Fathers'-and-Daughters' Banquet.

OFFICERS OF THE FHA - Sitting: Cindy Hill, Historian; Debbie Stevens, Third Vice-President; Nancy Christiansen, President; Risa Tew, Second Vice-President. Standing: Debbie Lindley, First Vice-President; Peggy Plant, Social Chairman; Susie Meikle, Program Chairman; Pam Larsen, Sec.

In new program, Senior FTA members experience teaching

Twice a month, all girls hoping to become nurses met to hear a guest speaker, to tour a hospital, or just to have a party. The FNA club prepared the members to cope with the problems and know the joys of being a nurse. After a teaching workshop, senior FTA members had the unique experience of assisting elementary school teachers with their classes. The new program taught participants the basics of good teaching. The club also took a trip to USU and ushered at PTA conventions.

Exhibits and field trips were among the activities of the FFA club. Once a month, members entered livestock and plants to compete within their club and with others in the state. The officers attended a state FFA convention.

intelligence, and ingenuity

With the aid of the Superintendent, the sound and light crew installed the new sound system in the auditorium. Their assistance was also called upon to produce tricky sound effects, change people into green monsters or pink Martians, and create moods at dances.

The scenery crew painted each other, splashed paint on the wall, laughed at corny jokes, covered the stage with brown glue to make possible effective black-outs for the play and even managed to finish the largest, most difficult set in Sky View history for the musical.

Among the duties of student directors for both the play and musical were prompting forgetful actors, pulling curtains, and sweating moment by moment until each night was completed in hopes that nothing would go amiss. They coordinated sound, lights, scenery, costuming, make-up, business, and cast parties.

Newly organized, the Chess Club gave chess enthusiasts a chance to practice and improve their game. In one skill contest, players had to make their move within ten seconds. A club tournament, held during the second semester, eliminated members one by one, until the most skilled player became the victor. Members also taught non-members chess games.

DECA, Business, Literary, and Science CLUBS

DECA was a class, a job, and a club. Members took part in regional, state, and national DECA contests and elections. They sold canned pop and Christmas candles to raise money for their Employer-Employee Banquet. All advertising and business for the musical, Fiddler on the Roof, was done by the DECA club.

Moore's Business Forms, Utah Mortgage and Loan, the Data Processing Center and Utah State University's Business Department helped the future secretaries and receptionists of the Business club in making their decisions about further education and future employment.

Authors and poets brought their talent together in the Literary club. They learned correct techniques and current trends in writing stories and poems from their advisor, Mr. Jenson. Each semester they published a magazine of stories, prose, and poetry by students.

With lectures on ecology and the microscope, field trips to the USU Water Lab and the Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City, the Science Club learned of the universe and its problems. They sponsored contests where students were challenged to make long-flying paper airplanes and strong, balsa bridges.

Theme 'Memories' sets stage for HOMECOMING activities which

alumni and students share

Excitement and momentum began to mount Wednesday night as students stuffed thousands of Kleenex in chicken wire holes preparing for the official opening of Homecoming 1970-71. The parade down main street in Smithfield was the largest ever. Later that night at the pep rally, the traditional bonfire lit the sky as the Box Elder Bee burned. There was also the untraditional invasion of downtown Logan with horn honking every half-hour. Oldtimers Gay Taylor and Dave Lambert recalled "Memories" in the form of talent from the good old days and announced the royalty in an assembly presented by the Boys' and Girls' Associations. Spirit reached feverishly high at the football game Friday afternoon as the close game ended in a tie, 6-6, and it did not diminish until after the dance that night.

Left: Nina Budge stufts tissues in the wire and board making a float to compete in the Homecoming Parade as part of the week's activities. Lower left: Singing the theme song, "Traces," during the Homecoming Assembly are Danny Price, Dee Ashcroft, and Kim Rinderknecht. Lower right: A couple looks at display of pictures of alumni at the dance, the climax for Homecoming Week.

Students generate enthusiasm, spirit, and excitement, hoping for a victory over Box Elder during traditional pep rally and bonfire.

'Autumn Leaves' appropriate theme at SENIOR PROM

Stained glass windows, velvet chairs, and satin arches created the elegant and extra special feeling of the Senior Prom. Couples danced to the music of the Starlighters and were delighted by the tap-dancing of the two pre-school age girls during the floor show. Lila Cooley and Jerry Jensen sang the theme song and the Royalty; Carol Sue Plowman, Queen; Steve McFarland, King; Lynette Anderson, Danny Price, and Ann Dennis, Mike Sphuler, Attendants were presented an exclusive dance for seniors.

In April during a special week planned in their honor, Seniors went early to lunch and chose top Senior Personalities, along with other activities. Their assembly "Both Sides of a Senior" showed the good and bad in the lives of typical high school seniors.

Upper left: Two little girls from Mary Bair's tap dance class perform a number in the floorshow at the Senior Prom. Lower left: Working on opposite sides of the dividers in the cafeteria makes the hanging of plastic easier for Susie Miekle and Georgia Larsen who were on the decorating committee. Jerry Jensen and Lila Cooley (below) sing "Autumn Leaves," the theme song of Prom.

Flowers for Algernon runs four full nights

Because of the abundance of acting ability at Sky View, this year for the first time, lead rolls were double cast and Flowers for Algernon ran four, rather than three, nights with the largest turnouts of all time. Children's voices eerily singing "Three Blind Mice," one main stage setting with curtains pulled only during intermission, short scenes with no in-between waiting, and background music from the movie Far From the Madding Crowd contributed to the effect of this great, fast-moving production. Every man and mouse gave full devotion during the three months of practice needed to make Flowers for Algernon, directed by Mrs. Elaine Carlson and Mr. Edwin Jenson, an unusual success.

Top left: Smiling, happy with his smartness, Charlie pretends "Somebody spilleded red ink on a white card," in response to Burt's asking him "What do you see on this card?" Top right: Professor Strauss examines Charlie after the complicated operation that turns him into a genius, at least for a while. Bottom right: "Charlie, don't push me. Every week you're a different person. When you mature intellectually, we may not even be able to communicate. When you mature emotionally, you may not even want me. I've got to think of myself, too, Charlie," Alice cries Top left: Wanting desperately to talk to someone, Charlie goes back to the night school where Alice teaches and meets Bernice and Connie, two of Charlie's former classmates. Top right: "No! It's got to be mine! Charlie can't have it. I'm the one who got an " $A$ " in history. If I can't have it for myself, I don't want it!" Bottom: "I'm looking, I'm seeing, but I'm not believing. How come Charlie is working the dough-mixing machine?" asks Mrs. Donner as she and the bakery staff stare at the result of Frank's joke.

Flowers for Algernon: story of Charlie Gordon-moron, genius, man in search of himself

Charlie was just like a "lovable little boy" until Dr. Strauss and Prof. Nemur, by a startling new enzyme process, used him as a guinea pig in increase his I.Q. from 68 to well over 170. Although Charlie's intelligence increases rapidly until it even surpasses those of his "creators," his emotions become unbalanced until he finds it hard to relate to people, including Alice Kinnian, who falls in love with him.

At a scientific convention, Charlie gets his first hint that his intelligence might decrease, causing him to run off with Algernon, the mouse the experiment first succeeded on, to test his theories. When he finds he will regress at the same rate he progressed, he returns to see his family and spend some time with Alice to make the most of what little he has left. Finally he returns to a deeper oblivion than before, never to return.

Top: While Charlie dances awkwardly but happily with Ellen at Frank's party, Frank sticks his foot out to trip him in another one of his "April Fool's jokes." Bottom: "I'm a person now and so was Charlie before he ever walked into that lab. But you doctors and Ph.D.'s believe a person with an I.Q. of less than 100 is expen-expen-That we don't matter. But we do!" cries Charlie as he begins reverting back to his early speech pattern.

Top left: "Sure, you'll ive fun to have around, Mr. Gordon, always jokin' like you are . . . That is a mouse!" Top right: "You'll go away when I tell you to? It may not be for very long . . . but, maybe, we'll have more than others have in a lifetime." Bottom: Charlie's mother screams, "I can't stand him here! Look what he's made of my life . . . but I won't let him do it to my child's life!"' as she mistakenly raves at the old Charlie she believes present, while Norma, use to her mother's insanity, grabs the knife away.

Sophomore CHRISTMAS

DANCE considered success

"Snow Flake Fantasy" themed the annual Christmas Dance sponsored by the sophomores. The classmates spent many hours decorating the cafeteria to form a fantasy land of glittering lights, Christmas trees and shimmering green, red, and white background. During intermission, Tammy Keller, Becky Hyer and Lynette Robinson sang the theme song, "Snow Flake Fantasy." The dance royalty was Jerri Larsen and Gary Webb, Queen and King; Julie Merrill and Randy Oldroyd, First Attendants; Kandace Pond and Bruce Allen, Second Attendants.

The Roof onstage success

the curtains opened, the sun reddened, and the fiddler on the roof began playing as Tevye came forward to start the action of Fiddler on the Roof-thus climaxing practices that began early in December and continued even through the school Christmas movie and holidays as actors and actresses strove to perfect lines and actions. An entire house capable of opening up, a pump that produced real water, a tree and sky wings completely bordering the stage, and a sun backdrop were only a few unique features of the scenery set. The perfection of the acting, singing, orchestra, lighting, the cast party at the Smithfield Country Club, all added to the special unity and closeness that made Fiddler on the Roof live on within participants even after performances were over.

Top right: "A fiddler on the roof, sounds crazy no? But in our little village of Anatevka, you might say that every one of us is a fiddler on the roof, trying to scratch out a pleasant, simple tune without breaking his neck." Bottom left: Golde and Yente discuss marriage possibilities for Tzeitel. Bottom right: The wise Rabbi calms the excited villagers after Tevye and Lazar's heated argument over whom Tzeitel should have married.

Upper: Adding his wisdom to a worldly conversation, Mordcha the innkeeper grumbles, "Why break my head over the outside world. Let them break their own heads," when Perchik comes forward to question the group on their cursing of the Tsar and some of his subjects. Below left: Overjoyed at Hodel's acceptance of his proposal, Perchik sings, "I used to tell myself that I had everything, but that was only half true . . now I even have you!" Below right: "Matchmaker, Matchmaker, make me a match, find mea find, catch me a catch," plead Chava and Hodel before Tzeitel awakens them to the dangers of matrimony.

Breaking age old laws of tradition theme of Jewish

contemporary musical FIDDLER ON THE ROOF

In Anatevka, an impoverished town in Tsarist Russia, lives Tevye, the dairy-man, who has raised his five daughters with the aid of quotations from the scriptures. They hear little news of the outside world and their lives are governed strictly by the ageold laws of tradition. When Tzeitel sets a precedent for her sisters by marrying the man she loves, the old order begins to break down.

With Chava, Tevye is asked to bend too far and so rejects her to maintain his peace of mind. The safe world which he has struggled so hard to build for his family receives its greatest blow when the Tsar orders all Jews to evacuate their homes. Tevye's few belongings are packed on his cart and he and his family move off to America where they hope there will be no hatred, cruelty, and poverty.

Upper left: "To think that tomorrow you'll be my papa." "Your papa! I always wanted a son, but one a little younger than myself." Lower left: Frightened by a strange apparition, Anatevka villagers sing, "It's the butcher's poor departed wife-Fruma-Sarah ... Fruma-Sarah .. Fruma-Sarah!'" while Golde shakes and Tevye fakes fight. Right: Together Tevye and Golde come to conclusion that "It doesn't change a thing but even so, after twenty-five years it's nice to know," after answering yes to the belated question, "Do you love me."

For their Sabbath prayer, Tevye and Golde, their five daughters, Motel the tailor's son, Perchik a student from Kiev, all softly sing, "May the Lord protect and defend you, may he always shield you from shame. May you come to be in Yeseril a shining name," as they light the candles.

Wanting to say something to Chava whom he rejected because she married a Russian, and because of pride, Tevye communicates "God be with you" to her through Tzeitel.

JUNIOR PROM decorated with signs of zodiac, climaxes activities of

Sky View JUNIOR WEEK

Cancer, Pisces, Aries, Taurus, Virgo, Gemini, Capricorn, Sagittarius, Libra, Leo, and Scorpio are all signs of the Zodiac, but the juniors chose the "Age of Aquarius" to theme their week. In the Junior Assembly, a roller derby, a Romeo and Juliet scene, a romper room skit where several teachers were impersonated, an ode to a fish, and a seance portrayed the characteristics of the zodiac signs. When the Prom royalty were introduced in the assembly, Ellen Bischoff and Mary Jo Hansen sang the theme song. They sang the theme at the Prom where couples danced in an atmosphere of stars, purple and lavender decorations with zodiac signs scattered throughout to climax Junior Week, a real "dawning of the Age of Aquarius."

ASSEMBLIES give students

chance to meet together

Besides providing entertainment, assemblies gave the studentbody an opportunity to meet together as a united group for special reasons. Region and state trophies were presented to Mr. Thurston and the studentbody, and appreciation for "a job well done" was given by the administration. Classes had the chance to meet by themselves to plan activities, to iron out their problems, and to elect their leaders. An opportunity was given for girls to speak their piece giving the pro's and con's through the democratic process on the wearing of pants to school. The last weeks of school were packed full of assemblies as the new 1971-72 leaders were elected. The Aurora was presented to the studentbody, and the new yearbook and newspaper editors were announced.

They told of experiences and urged students not to start using drugs. Right: "On the Good Ship Lollipop," sings Shirley Temple, alias Mike Richardson, on an assembly.

Students anticipate, participate in ASSEMBLIES to break monotony of regular daily schedules

Assemblies were the highlight of the week and much-looked-forward-to by most of the students. Singing groups, The New Freedom Singers from Ricks College, The Village Voices from Utah State, and Sky View's Front Porch Majority, entertained students through their dance and song. The Utah Symphony Orchestra and the Utah State Chorale Singers brought a little culture into students lives while the Sophomore initiation assembly was just plain fun. Prison inmates asked students to help other juveniles avoid crime. The FHA and FFA gave an "Emotional Experience" and the Girls' and Boys' Association brought films, fashions, and basketball games. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors out did themselves in hopes of receiving the honored trophy.

Below: "Thump, Thump, Thump, and the chicken heart ate up New York City! Lower left: Doing one of their many stunts-balancing the girls upside down on the boy's shoulders-the cheerleaders brought out the school spirit in everyone by cheering "End, Tackle, Center, Guard" at the Ogden pep assembly. Lower right: "LET'S DOWN THOSE GRIZZLIES" yell students as cheerleaders end cheer with spin.

Students honk horns, paint hands blue, build paper chains to show school spirit

at PEP ASSEMBLIES

With the shout "Fight! Fight! Fight!" Sky View started a year of funny and spiritpromoting pep assemblies. From dedicating the new bleachers to a dare for everyone to drive to Logan and honk their horns for three hours, the cheer and songleaders, the Vistauns, and various other clubs presented many pep assemblies to the school. Hands dipped in blue paint and a spirit chain contest between the classes to raise money for the student center were some of the stunts used to induce spirit. Skits varied from Ku Klux Klan and Homer and Jethro to Henny Penny and Romper Room. The students honored the seniors with fifteen "rah's" because it was their last pep assembly. Whether serious or hilarious, the pep assemblies helped keep up the fighting spirit of the studentbody.

Bobcat VARSITY FOOTBALL team ends nine game season with 6-3

A new, larger stadium with a better view, a new varsity line coach, and a whole new football team described football for 1971. With hardly any returning varsity players, Coach Earl Lindley took the challenge of building a new varsity squad and really made things happen with a $6-3$ record.

Sloshing their way through mud, snow, wind, rain, and first game jitters, the Bobcats beat Bear River by two points. After two more easy victories the Bobcats then faced two disappointing losses as arch rival Logan held them scoreless and won by fourteen points; Roy smashed them at Roy's homecoming game by a humiliating thirty-one points. A tie with Box Elder at Homecoming blew all hope of attaining the Region title and attending State Tournament games. The 1971 Gridders made dedication, sweat, and sacrifice pay well with two more wins over Ben Lomond and Weber. In a non-league game, Sky View ended season with an upsetting loss by letting Blackfoot squeak by with a two point win.

Above left: Senior Ricky Garrett looks ahead to watch on-coming defensive players. Running a left-end-sweep, he gains great yardage, while other Bobcat teammates block for a pathway. Below: Tucking the football close to his side, Jon Miller runs an end-sweep while playing the Ogden Tigers. The Sky View Bobcats Varsity was victorious in the home game with a score of 42 to 18 .

JUNIOR VARSITY wins

five out of eight games

With many of the Junior Varsity players seeing not only JV action, but also Varsity, they completed a successful season with a record of five wins out of eight games. The tough, brutal game with the pigskin revealed that the Sky View Bobkittens weren't going to give up, no matter what the fourth quarter brought. Winning against Box Elder was considered a great accomplishment by Coaches Merlin Maughan, who instructed the backfield, and Vilarr Ransom, who worked with the line.

SOPHOMORES gain experience for successful future

Through disappointing losses and jubilant wins, sophomores gained experience for a successful varsity team. Coach Jessop trained the Bobkittens in the platoon method in which each player worked either on offense or defense. At away games not everyone could play, but at home games all players suited up. Sky View topped Logan in a special game played for those who did not get a chance to play in league games.

Individual effort makes great CROSS COUNTRY

Working out and running to build up endurance proved worthwhile as the Sky View Cross Country runners raced to victory in all but one meet. Losing only to Intermountain Indian School, Sky View placed second in the region. In the course of the three mile run, Lee Nelson, Sky View's star runner, broke the record by one second with a jubilant 17:11. Struggling close behind was Craig Dunkley, who placed second in several races. In the USU Invitational, running among 75 other participants from schools throughout Utah, Lee Nelson finished in sixth place with Craig Dunkley in 15th, Dennis Godderidge in 16th.

SWIMMERS make big splash in fourteen swim meets

Sky View swimmers poured on the extra power as they took a quick look back, swam the final length toward the finish line, and impatiently waited for their times. The swimmers plunged into this activity and earned a 3-7 record. They sponsored a fiveway invitational and placed third. Records were broken by Galen Hansen in the 200yard individual medley with a time of 2:26 and by Lance Buckley in the free style with a time of $2: 13$. Coach Oliverson worked the team each night to gain speed and endurance.

Hoop eludes VARSITY BASKETBALLERS; slate falls to 6-13 for season, despite all-inclusive effort

Hopes of a successful season soon fell by the wayside as the Varsity team managed to achieve only six victories for the season. The load was eased by many rising young Junior and Sophomore stars who gained experience for next year by playing varsity ball against tough competition. Under Head Coach Ivan Christianson the team, after winning one preseason game, went into a series oflosses to Skyline, Box Elder, Weber, Layton, and Bear River. They came back with narrow wins over Intermountain and Preston, and one win over Bonneville and Roy. This proved to be the bright spot of the season as the rest of the season's play ended in losses. High scorer was Bob Ellis averaging 14 points per game.

JV BOBKITTENS prove

promising for future year

Training for the upcoming Varsity Basketball team was provided by Coach Willard "Soup" Jessop who had great hopes for the 1970-1971 JV team. Through the team's wins or losses, it kept on fighting. Sophomore roundballers helped the Juniors make tough competition for opposing teams. Seventeen boys dressed for the games, and fifteen to seventeen players substituted in each game because they were evenly matched in skill. Coach Jessop encouraged the boys to excel in all aspects of the sport: offense, defense, shooting, footwork, and teamwork. Sky View High looked forward to a future winning year from the Bobkittens.

SOPHOMORES win most

 games for successful yearTwenty determined sophomores, representing two junior high schools, came together to form the sophomore basketball team. Six of the sophomores on the team practiced with the Junior Varsity and Varsity teams and even dressed and played with the Varsity at several games. Although lacking height, the group handled the ball well and made a great shooting team. They only needed to be taught the basic fundamentals and jumping techniques of basketball according to Coach Merlin Maughan who worked with them to perfect the techniques. Unusual scoring for a sophomore team was reached during the season with 102 being the highest score while 89 and 90 were other top scores.

WRESTLERS retain region trophy; Bruce Balls, Gary Andersen take

top places at state tourney

Wrestling proved to be the bright spot of winter sports as the team fought its way to a 7-1 season under the direction of Head Coach Vilarr Ransom and Junior Coach Gordon Churchill. Hopes for an undefeated season were upset by Bear River, but during Sky View's invitational meet the wrestlers came back with an easy win over the Bears. Coing undefeated throughout the season were Gary Anderson, Dave Anderson, David Lambert, and Bruce Balls. In the Region Meet held February 19 and 20 in Sky View's gym the wrestlers kept the region trophy at Sky View for the fourth consecutive year and qualified ten wrestlers for the state meet at Bountiful.

At state undefeated Bruce Balls took first place in his weight, Gary Anderson took third, while Sky View came away with ninth place.

The Junior Wrestling squad followed the example of the varsity team by completing the season without a loss, with Steve Miller going undefeated. The Sophomores, under the guidance of CoachEarlLindley, had seven wins.

BASEBALL season brings

 ball diamond to Sky ViewBeginning the baseball season meant breaking in a new diamond just north of the Vocational Building. Previous teams looked forward to their own diamond at Sky View as this would mean no more bus rides to the Smithfield ball park for games, but this dream didn't come true until the 1971 season.

April 6 brought the new season and a game with Bear River High School. During the next eight games Coach Merlin Maughan depended on two seniors, Jon Miller for pitching and Jim Jenson who played a strong left field.

GOLF, TENNIS teams prove worthy of high praise

During the cold weather, the Sky View golfers practiced in the south balcony. Later, they went daily to Summit Golf Course where they played a round of golf and learned such skills as putting and chip shots. The week before their Monday matches with other schools the team challenged each other and the top five players played the opposing team. The top players for the season were Kyle Moser and Ricky Garrett. Coach Christensen trained a tennis team worthy of high praise this year. With most of the top tennis champions returning from last year, Bob Ellis, DellLoy Hansen, Mike Spuhler, Ron Jibson, and some hopeful new players, such as Wayne Watkins and Gary Webb, the team proved to be strong and had a successful season.

TRACK AND FIELD athletes strain soul, muscles to achieve heighth, speed,

endurance, accuracy in events

Senior, junior, and sophomore boys were jumping around at the start of spring. Track gave the opportunity to show their abilities in the many different events covered in track and field. The track events included running for speed, endurance and accuracy. They were covered by the 100 -yard dash, the two-mile, and the relay. The field events included broad-jumping, high-jumping, pole-vaulting, throwing the shot-put, javelin and disc. Spring training started early in March. The team stayed after school and endured many hours of hard practice. Coach Jessop and assistants coached the team through eight meets.

Sixty-five seniors who were always found staying after or coming early to school to practice for assemblies, decorate for dances or to participate in sports earned an activity award and pin at the awards assembly. They were studentbody, class, and club officers They were students in the play and musical and the people backstage. They were the people who furnished the school with its yearbook, literary magazine, and newspaper.

Maintaining a 3.7 grade point average from the ninth grade throughout the twelfth grade sounded impossible, but forty-five Seniors proved that they could do it. They kept their grades high even though they had to sacrifice sleep, dates, or a favorite TV show. Superior students were awarded a scholarship pin at the awards assembly in May.

A special service to the school such as being chairman for the Homecoming Parade or writing an assembly earned about twenty students the name of Top Cat. A different student was featured in each issue of the Catonian.

SPEECH students, STERLING SCHOLARS compete

Taking second place in region after missing first place by only three points, Sky View qualified extemporaneous speaking, legislative forum, debate, and radio speaking participants for the State Forensics Meet held the last of March. Sky View returned with eleventh place honors at the $U$ of $U$.

The speech department completely dominated the Region Interpretive Meet, qualifying more students than ever before and more than their quota of three in each category to participate at State. Mrs. Carlson also directed the one-act play, "The Moonlit Way," an international Japanese play. Sky View took high honors at State.

Achievements in activities and in academics with a speciality in one field qualified twelve seniors as Sterling Scholars and five as region finalists. They entered competition by compiling a portfolio and having a personal interview. The Sterling Scholar program sponsored by the Deseret News and KSL Radio offered recognition and a chance for jobs and scholarships.

of SPECIAL AWARDS

Seven students received State Farmer's Degrees. This award was based on their leadership ability, the size of their farming projects, and their accurate record books. Sky View has had more State Farmers than any other school.
"Young Americans in Concert," an organization made up of the top musicians and singers from across the country, selected three Sky View students, Roxanne Rigby, Alan Allred, Richard Hughey. They auditioned scales, etudes, and solos by recordings. They will tour six European countries this summer. Ruth Lindley was selected as a member of the "Students Choir of America" and will tour Europe.

Robyn Brown received special recognition for doing the art work on the Aurora cover.

AROUND TOWN,
It's a place
another world stretching, reaching pulling, us to farther limits - away, sometimes, from what we know.
A prelude to a world beyond.
Searching?
Yes!
For life and love,
for just plain things.
It's always better after you've cried in a show or eaten a sandwich.
We seek out the nooks and crannies of society and enjoy our search

Local MERCHANTS patronize Sky View during school events, activities

Hobson Photographers, located at 1015 N. Main in Logan, does all of the Senior class portraits, annually, for the yearbook's class pictures at Sky View High School.

Bryce Johnson, Marty Hibbard, Meri Ann Selley, and Bob Ellis talk over their last program at Randall's Shoe Store in Logan, 37 S. Main, sponsor of "Sky View Speaks."

Steven Hicken and Craig Dunkley look at a pair of suit slacks and try on jackets while trying to find the look they want in the Kater Shop at 128 Main in Logan.

At Gepharts store on Main in Smithfield, Joy Wadley looks at new spring purses.

The Arctic Circle, located at 721 N. Main in Logan, has delicious food to eat and is in an excellent location for the Sky View, High School students who work there.

The Andy's Drive-Inn in Lewiston gives Lewiston girls a chance to have a job near home.

Sherry Ashment and Christa Chappell pick out records in the Penny's record department, 59 N. Main, this being one of the departments Diane Hyde works in.

Annette Chambers takes orders, as waitress at Andy's Drive-Inn in Smithfield.

SV students earn money after school, Saturdays at local ESTABLISHMENTS

Mike Theurer, a junior, puts some packages of fresh hot dogs into the freezer to display them, as part of his after-school and Saturday job at Horlachers, Logan.

[^8]Clothing STORES offer students a wide choice of dress and casual clothes

Clinton Tams and Lee Nelson, Sky View seniors, look at brightly-designed slacks and try on mod hats from The Competition in Logan, the modern store for modern men.

Cindy Nielsen, a senior, wears an exquisite bridal gown from Maud's in Hyrum.

Long or short seems to be the question as Nan Mortensen and Janet Purser look for appropriate dresses for school events at Ceenies, 169 E. 4 N. in Logan.

At The Red Fox, Logan, Janis Niederhauser and Julie Robinette try on pretty pantsuits.

Student dream realized in $30,000 STUDENT CENTER

Slides showing students lining the halls and wandering aimlessly during noon and before school hours helped persuade School Board to accept the plans presented by the Student Center Committee. Students pitched in with money raising projects-dances, popbottle and newspaper drives, and Buddy Board sales-to earn over $$ 3,000$. Students cut construction costs by hauling gravel, pouring cement, and painting. After the February dedication the blue and green carpeted Student Center was opened for student use.

Right: During the summer, Kristy Lewis, committee member, Principal Thurston, and Mr. Webb clear bushes and shrubs from patio in ground breaking ceremonies for Student Center. Below: Mike Jarrett participates in one of many money-raising projects, collecting of pop bottles.

Upper: One lone devoted sports fan remains after the final home game, lingering over the joys and disappointments of the season before moving on to the expected accomplishments of the next season. Lower; Fashion trends invade Sky View in the form of chokers, boots, maxis, midis, minis, and pants, giving girls a chance for a different look everyday.

Seniors take LAST LOOK

at final high school year

The year held many new images besides the old, familiar ones which combined to create an impression of SV 1970-71. Cadet teachers . . . Principal Thurston . . . more football bleachers . . . hamburgers, lunch choices . . . new sound system in the auditorium . . . maxis, midis, minis, pants - for awhile . . . Homecoming . . . lunch doughnut sales . . SV-Logan basketball games at USU Assembly Center . . . Forever fightBlue, Gold, White! . . . early morning, late afternoon P.A. announcements . . . spare time . . . sleeping, singing, daydreaming . . . final tests . . . Senior Class Assembly Senior Week . . . school hymn-"A Treasure More Than Gold" . . . Graduation . . . walking out of Sky View as alumni . . . a year filled with the wild, wonderful days of youth!

LIFE,

A time of childhood, youth, growing further upward, reaching out.
Along the way
we have lost yesterday and are not sure where to find tomorrow.
So we continue our Search, spending moments
watching April sunbeams dance across a desk, or lingering in a hallway.
We stare at faces,
listen intently to voices
filled with youth, trying to capture,
somehow,
tomorrow in the ache of Now.
Forever forward, but-not too quickly,
for we have a lifetime
to search.
Right now
we've found ourselves in being with others -friends-who may soon become misted in the changing landscape.
So live for today
and let tomorrow come as we meet it before becoming obsessed with growing up and away from the beautiful hurt of the youth that was and may be no more.

IN MEMORIAM

Carlos Dean Smith
June 17, 1934 - May 1, 1971

It was a pleasure to have known Dean Smith.
We are thankful for the enrichment that he provided for our lives.
Dean was a man who never complained, grumbled, or criticized other people.
He was a pleasure to be around, and

- to work with.

When asked to do a particular job or when given a specific task
he responded with enthusiasm and a dedicated air
of cooperation.
He possessed the qualities that would be desirable for all people
to obtain.
For these qualities we are grateful and thankful for the opportunity of knowing Dean Smith.
