

“Where do you think? We’re taking you to the dungeon.”

“Where do you think we’re taking you? To the dungeon?”

Choose two different groups of sentences below. Fold a piece of paper in half, and draw a representation of what each sentence means (one picture on one half, the other on the other half, like the pictures above).

The panda eats shoots and leaves.

The panda eats, shoots, and leaves.

Becky walked on, her head a little higher than usual.

Becky walked on her head a little higher than usual.

Look at that huge hot dog!

Look at that huge, hot dog!

The student, said the teacher, is crazy.

The student said the teacher is crazy.

No pushing, Sally.

No pushing Sally.

Go, get him doctors!

Go get him, doctors.

Every day, Anthony turns, slides, and swings.

Every day, Anthony turns slides and swings.

Eat here, and get gas.

Eat here and get gas.

Slow, children crossing here.

Slow children crossing here.